U.S. 3rd Army Breaks Into Czechoslovakia

as victory of the war. It will prove more costly to the Germans than the attack at Stalingrad, which is regarded as one of the decisive victories of history.

NAZIS LOSE HEAVILY

The Germans lost 312,000 killed and captured in the last week, but already 369,484 prisoners have been taken from the Rhine front and more than 30,000 are expected to surrender daily. Allied supreme headquarters announced this morning that 205,075 Germans had been captured in the west since D day, on June 6 last. Some 149,000 yielded yesterday, so the April total was to date 575,000.

The German trap in the Marne mountains is also yielding many prisoners. The Allies have cut the front of the front being waged with deadly fanaticism by the Nazis.

Ninth army troops fought Magdeburg after an anchor on the opposite Berlin. This industrial and commercial centre with a population of 334,538 was Germany's 26th largest city before bombs and shelling reduced it to smoking ruins.

STORM LEIPZIG

First army Second Army drove into the outskirts of Leipzig and the U.S. Seventh Cleared half the Nurem shrine city of Nurem. In their drive the Americans have captured 100,000 of all five Nazi citadels to points as close as 70 miles from the Russians, and the Rhine front now more than 200 miles from the Rhine crossings, have closed within 18 miles of Hamburg, another ultimate, and fighting is bitter.

NEAR DRESDEN

Unconfirmed reports said that one armored unit which pushed on toward Chemnitz, where Gen. Patton's 3rd U.S. Army has been held up, had crossed the Elbe near Dresden and secured a 22-mile stretch of the left bank of the Mulde River. There were 100,000 Germans in the area around Osterode by gunners and tanks.

Savage opposition was also met at Chemnitz, where Gen. Patton's 3rd U.S. Army has been held up. The city was held yesterday before taking a heavy artillery barrage. Here also the Nazi commanders were pushing toward ultimate, and fighting is bitter.

Huge censored field dispatches from the operations headquarters of the spearhead units indicate that there is fanatical German resistance, and the Nazi commando forces, and that supply difficulties are slowing up the armored sweeps into eastern Germany.

No one spoke out somberly; however, that the stiffening resistance has come too late to prevent the Nazi commando forces from encircling and disorganized islands of resistance most of which are out of contact with the German high command.

CROWD HAMBURG

The British Second Army drive is crowding up on Hamburg, driving up the Elbe, and the British are closing along the enemy front. Advancing against weakening opposition across the Lüneberg Heath south of Hamburg, the British Seventh Army has reached the railway centre of Soltau, 30 miles below the port, and rammed ahead another ten miles this morning for an advance of 25 miles in 26 hours.

On the northern bank of the Elbe the British 2nd Airborne Division and the "Red Devils" of the famous Sixth Airborne Division smashed forward one mile to the north of the 10 miles of the Elbe river, cutting the main Hamburg-Berlin railway.

This advance carried eight miles north of Uelzen into Wickede, eight miles southeast of Lüneburg, and the British and the Elbe. Scottish infantry units, strong armoured columns, fought their way into Uelzen and have already cleared up more than half the town.

NAZIS GOON

The drive of Lt. Gen. Sir Miles Dempsey's Second British Army, coupled with the Canadian First Army's sweep to the North Sea coast farther to the west, has doomed the German forces in the northwest ports, and Allied fliers report heavy ship and barge traffic coming from Hamburg, indicating that German troops and supplies are being evacuated from the port and German coastal areas to the west.

The Canadians have cleared up Aeselund, strongly held Dutch fortifications on the western flank, and the infantry has now pushed forward another seven miles to the west of Linken, and the British 2nd Airborne Division tank column that drove 16 miles north from Arnhem. The line now runs just east of Ammerloft.

Meantime other Canadian troops in Holland have continued the sweep northward, and the town of Friesland and IJssel have been captured. The remaining battalions of their line in front of Berlin is growing more and more.

On the American 1st Army front infantry divisions three a series are all the way from the Rhine to the frontier ultimate had been ignored, fought their way into the streets of the German military base from the east and west.

Hundreds of guns maintained a dense barrage on the trapped Nazis, and the American front at 30,000 men, but front line reporters say that they are strongly entrenched and are bent on a suicidal defence of the city.

An equally fierce fight raged in the streets of Hamm, 15 miles to the northwest, although the smaller German force there was reported

Canada Faces Serious Lack Of Farm Help

By LLOYD MCDONALD

With wartime needs still predominating and with the prospect fading of a postwar peace, demands in the postwar reconstruction period, Canada today faces one of its most serious labor problems in every agricultural area.

Meeting the demand for farm labor has been a major problem of the federal labor department and programs are being operated in each of the ten provinces.

Extensive movements are planned between areas where there are surpluses and those where shortages exist.

So acute is the problem in some western Ontario areas that workers are being directed back to farms.

HUNDREDS RETURNING

Prarie farm workers, after a winter working in industry, are homeward bound to participate in farm operations. Those primary industries advisor to the government, Dr. C. F. Kriegerman, said at Winnipeg that already more than 4,000 have returned, and hundreds more will follow.

The farm labor pool in the west may be enlarged by the men of the Canadian army with low rates of pay and long hours of spring seeding. Last harvest 1,842 soldier workers were employed on the prairies.

In the Lethbridge and Brooks Area of Southern Alberta, prisoners of war will be used to fill labor demands which originated for work in sugar beet-fields.

NEED PRESSING

In spite of all the labor sources however, the need is still pressing.

The Saskatchewan farm labor committee plans a systematic recheck on the number of men available for work and holding postponements. Those found not essentially employed and available for work will be directed to employment in the land.

Ontario's early spring has increased the problem.

In Nova Scotia provincial agricultural minister John A. McDonald says the Labor shortage is "even greater than we thought."

One bright spot on the map seems to be the farming districts of the Maritimes.

Service officials do not expect much difficulty in working the men at least until the harvest begins.

In 1826 the first successful reaping machine was invented by the Rev. Patrick Bell in England.

Put out the Welcome Mat for the VICTORY LOAN SALESMAN

Within the next few days a Victory Loan salesman will call on you. He is one of your community's businessmen who has put his regular work aside in order to help put over Canada's big job—a job that could not succeed but for the untiring efforts of this man and his fellow-workers.

He has a lot of territory to cover and a great many people to see. YOU can help him immeasurably if you—look over your financial position in advance; arrange to see him the first time he calls; assist him to see others in your household at the same time.

Welcome him too as bringing you the opportunity to help your country at a time when large amounts of money are urgently needed to complete the defeat of the Axis powers. At the same time he offers you an investment second to none which will serve as a nest-egg to buy those post-war necessities.

So let us all put out the welcome mat for a man who really deserves it—the Victory Loan salesman!

Verdict of Jury

Chaplin Adjudged Father Of Joan Berry's Daughter

HOLLYWOOD, April 18.—(UPI)—Film comedian Charlie Chaplin will appeal the verdict that declared him the father of Baby Carol Ann Berry, 18-month-old

The jury of 11 women and one man deliberated for two hours and 55 minutes.

Neither the white-haired comedian nor his lawyer, Charles E. Millikan, was present in court. Only 11 spectators were present.

There was a light burst of applause as the verdict was read. The sum total of the damages awarded by the court was $11,000, reversing the 7½ verdict in Chaplin's favor in a trial. A judge of 9½ years had been sufficient to decide the case.

The lone dissenting juror in yesterday's vote was Mrs. Mary H. James.

The new positions are regional administrators for eastern and western Canada and regional medical officers for eastern and western Canada.

One of the posts, that of western regional administrator, has already been filled by the promotion of Dr. W. J. McLean, formerly assistant medical administrator for Vancouver district to the post. The other appointments are still to be made.

For purposes of the positions, the Dominion would be divided at Fort William and Port Arthur, with these two locations being incorporated in the western region.

An Air Transport Record

The Allies' bomber command in India has been doing a job of flying supplies across the Himalaya mountains to China. They have been flying over 100,000 tons of cargo over that difficult route and only one met with an accident, crashing in a storm. The supplies freighted were equivalent to ten million tons carried one mile.

This is not less than passing interest to people in Edmonton and those in the great north country who depend upon air transport from this city.

No part of our northern area is as unfavorable for flying as the great mountain mass which lies between India and China. The map of the country shows the route which indicates the amount of northern development which can be served by air carriers from Edmonton, and the single accident over so long a period is assurance that air travel over the northland the world does not involve any undue danger to passengers, pilots or aircraft.

Keep the Salt Handy

The first wave of post-invasion rumors reached Stockholm and were broadcast from our studios after the Allies had gained a crossing of the Rhine and the Russians had started to move out from their bridgeheads on the Oder.

The waves have been coming daily since Monday brought four of them: Berlin was under martial law; Germany is being administered by the two parts, north and south; and the eastern and western fronts had been put under separate commands; the army and the elite guard had fought a battle, and Goering was in prison, heading the army return to Hitler.

No doubt a good many strange things are happening in Germany, and have been. Almost anything can happen there any day.

But whether good or bad, it will be well to not get excited over any report that comes from an outside listening post until it is confirmed. Most of these will be guesses based on hearsay, and some of them may be cunningly devised fables.

Washington Carries On

President Truman's message to Congress was not less a message to the world at large, to the Axis powers not less than to the United States and its allies, and in a special sense intended for the "conspirators" who are looking for a way of escape and an opportunity to plot again.

To these, as to all men everywhere, the statement that war was plain and positive.

The military leaders of the United States forces and forces of allied countries are serving will be "unchanged and unhampered" by any action of the new President. A conditional surrender remains the one condition on which the aggressor states can have peace.

The strategy of the Allies will remain as it is. Those who planned and launched this war, and those guilty of crimes against international law must be held responsible and brought to trial in a sound international organization to maintain peace must be created, for in that lies the only hope that the world can be saved from a future of deadly conflict, devoid of hope.

The United Nations peoples of the United Nations suppose would be the course to which the President would adhere. If at whatever place Herr Hitler could find his capital, whether Mussolini's skull, or elsewhere, he had to think that thought that the policy of Roosevelt might be modified by his successor, it is known now that the wish was vain. The complete and final destruction of the Axis, the punishment of the enigmas, the creation of world domination, the creation of machinery to prevent such machinations in future; these are the unchanged purposes to which the military power and the influence of the United States are to be directed.

The timing of this declaration is only less important than the declaration itself. There was no interval of uncertainty. Friend and foe too were taken without delay, as with a lightning bolt. And Washington carries on. For that, as for the clear-cut statement, the world is indebted to President Truman.

As the Shadows Close In

Two highly significant items are in the news of the Battle of Germany.

One is General Spaatz' announcement that the Allied bombers have finished the strategic bombing of German munitions and transportation centers. These cities will now join the medium and light bombers and fighters in going after enemy troop concentrations, armored columns and communication lines. They started the new operations Tuesday when the biggest air fleet London ever saw trained off for the continent.

The reason for the change is that the fighting is now confined to a relatively narrow strip down the middle of Germany and another along the coast. The block-busters and town-busters will now be concentrated on these areas. And, it may be assumed, particular attention will be paid to the Rhine, the Ruhr, the Saar and the Ruhr, where the Fuehrer and his gang are bent on making their final stand. Berchtesgaden and the Munich area are likely to see what happened to Hamburg and a hundred other centers back in the pre-invasion days.

The other item was the Hitler order of the day to his troops on the eastern front. This began with the usual boast and ended with a particularly indecent attack on the "cowardly Bolsheviks" who in 1939 tried as no one else did to dislodge Hitler from losing the avalanche that is now engulfing him. The important part of the document however is the frantic warning that should the Russians do in Germany what they did in Poland, the German people would forget all they have yet suffered in the agony yet to come.

The memory of the death-takers and the ravines filled full of murdered Russian civilians, is haunting the Hitlerites as the shadow of death hangs over them. Considering he none but he can't forget the terrible score for which he and his fellow-criminals are facing retribution.

Another very distinguished Edmonton fighting man is numbered among the missing. Squadron Leader Don Laubman, DFC and Bar, had destroyed a score of Nazi aircraft and shot up a dozen enemy locomotives and trains when he was reported missing to the public as having been captured on September 1st. He is one of Canada's best known Spitfire pilots and went overseas only recently, after home-leave, to begin his second operational tour. As many more Americans almost immediately became prisoners in enemy territories and been taken prisoner, there is hope that Squadron Leader Laubman thus survived and will in due time be liberated.

WORLD'S champion St. Louis Cardinals just couldn't persuade Paul Derringer and the Chicago Cubs to be reasonable for the National's opening. But Luke Appling and his Browns stuck it in when the last off-the-American League last fall by brushing off Detroit Tigers entirely overlooking the fact that Hal Newhouse was serving 'em up.

A total of 10,593 fans attended the eight opening games of the major leagues. The record of 18,732 from the 1921-26 was broken by 1941's 17,236. The weather got in the way of the Browns' opening, 30,685 was at Crosley Field, Cincinnati, for the Pirates-Reds.

Pete Gray, one-armed fielder with St. Louis Browns, broke into the majors with a single and was followed by a double and a home run catch by Roger Cramer. Gray at one time was the property of the New York Giants but Billie Grimm, the team manager, just can't believe Pete could make the grade and cut him loose.

FANS AIR THEIR GRIEVANCES
HARRY STEAMBOAT: JOHN HANSON

HANSON is looking back over 34 years of umpiring claims that the baseball fan's aim and language "ain't what it used to be."

"The baseball fan, like the player, is getting more refined. Five years ago, the baseball fang at me," not to mention beer jugs, bricks and other handy items.

"I've been a long time since a beer jug was bounced off my head," said Hanson. "Now Southern League ardent said with a note of nostalgia, "and since I've heard an epithet that really bugs me, it's 'You son of a gun.'"

"It's been a long time since a beer jug was bounced off my head," said Hanson.

SIX RECORDS—OF THE seven new marks established in the opening games of the major baseball season yesterday six were set by the Toronto Maple Leaf Red Sox, while the seventh, the Boston Red Sox, was established by the Oshawa Senators.

Seven New Records Set as Majors Open

NEW YORK, April 18.—(AP)—Seven new records of them by manager Mel Ott of the New York Giants, the others by first baseman Eddie Collins, second baseman Harry Heilmann and third baseman Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox, were established Tuesday as the major league baseball season got under way.

And by the way, Gasby whom Cleveland Browns of the American League beat in the opening game by Roger Cramer, Gray at one time was the property of the New York Giants but Billie Grimm, the team manager, just can't believe Pete could make the grade and cut him loose.

Bruce O'Meara of the Montreal Stars says there is talk that Eddie Collins, the Montreal Royal's senior defensive coach, has accepted his education in Toronto next season.

He adds that Curtis wants to go to the Stars, and that the former ace sports announcer was returned from overseas last summer and he did another stretch in Montreal.

"The baseball fan, like the player, is getting more refined. Five years ago, the baseball fang at me," not to mention beer jugs, bricks and other handy items.

"I've been a long time since a beer jug was bounced off my head," said Hanson.

Sixty-four thousand spectators attended five games of the 1941-42 World Series—Cleveland Indians' 10-9 win over the Boston Red Sox.

Cold weather of the past week or so has tended to discourage most of the baseball enthusiasm in Edmonton, where the St. Michael's Clarence Archer and his U.S. Signals have been the best-weathered fang at me," not to mention beer jugs, bricks and other handy items.

"I've been a long time since a beer jug was bounced off my head," said Hanson.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE NEVER ELDER
Any mother who has had children are notoriously good-natured, would wonder why her child would be cross and fussy. It is pretty certain when this condition exists that the child is either poorly fed or the mother is expecting behavior impossible to control. There is nothing but tears at a result. This seems to be true of Mrs. E. R. whose expectations are beyond fulfilling.

"I have a little boy nearly 9 months old," she writes, "and he is a real handful. He is so active he does not seem to keep him quiet and happy. He will sit with his toys for about half an hour and then he starts to cry and cry and cry and will keep it up for hours."

The only time he is good and quiet is when he is asleep in the afternoon. He is fed five times a day and takes a 2-ounce pasteurized milk with each meal. He sleeps using a bottle except at his 11 p.m. feeding. He gets two feedings of cereal, one of which is a special cereal about six or seven ounces of milk with his cereal but won't drink water. He has a glass of water after each meal and leaves quite a bit at each meal. At 11 p.m. he weighed 17½ pounds. He gets cold liver oil and cod liver oil every night.

"I only wish he would sit and be good for one or two hours at a time. I am getting tired."

You and every other mother! But you can't expect this of a 5-month-old child—of one that has been born and developed by being active, not by sitting still. Then the span of time is so short that there are frequent changes in position of environment and of playthings.

When your boy starts to fuss in his pen or crib or his highchair for a change. Move him into different rooms, let him be where he can see others, talk to him, sing to him, work. You won't spoil him but you will increase his good disposition for him what he can't do for himself.

He does not need an 11 p.m. feed—but should be on three meals a day with milk and cereal and it could have some sweetening and be more satisfying to him. The changes in diet and position of these other changes may be all that are needed to make a good baby of him.

Our Leaflet, "Three Meal Schedule," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your name and address to Silver Editions in care of this newspaper.

FACTS AND FANCIES ABOUT THE HAIR

Cutting the hair is not that hair that grows fastest. The hair needs to be cut frequently, the hair that is one-half to three-fourths of an inch a month. Likewise shaving doesn't make hair or beard grow faster or heavier, but one with a beard grows faster than one who will shave more frequently. My friend C. — regularly shaved his face and beard twice a week or more. Then he stopped shaving. In a few months there was no difference in the hair he had shaved.

Tall stories to the contrary notwithstanding hair never grows after being cut. The hair grows back just as fast as it grows.

The hair brush should be sterilized by boiling it. It should be cleaned otherwise thoroughly washed with soap and water and allowed to dry in the sun, every time the hair is combed.

Frequent use of water on the hair is harmful only in that it removes the natural oil from the scalp or hair.

If you apply to the scalp or hair a few drops of suitable oil frequently, washing does no harm.

Plucking the eyebrows does not destroy it—a new hair appears in six or eight weeks, becomes full and thick in three or four months. Plucking does not harm.

Hair is not a hollow tube, does not "bleed" or ooze when cut, should never be singed or otherwise subjected to greater heat than you would apply to your skin.

Application of antiseptic or medicinal preparation to the hair or scalp is not a good method of cure of dandruff is concerned. No one has found or identified a dandruff-causing agent—there is no good reason to believe dandruff is infectious in character.

Like the skin, the hair depends on glands for its health, vigor, growth and condition. No amount of dosing, medication or "curing" can apply to scalp or hair can materially improve its condition. If any such improvement is possible, it must come through the circulation, that is, the blood supply to the hair root.

It is the fashion nowadays to be married as quickly as possible. Your makeup. See which powder between the tone of your skin. Light powder on a Brunette skin is a sure sign of a good complexion because every little line shows up under a too-light powder.

As a finass has only an even chance to win, you should resort to it only when necessary. It was not until we set a record of pairs that the concern on today's hand simply because they made up their minds that the spades or diamonds would break.

The opening lead was won by East with the ace of clubs, a club was returned and declarer finessed the king of clubs. West led the jack and shifted to the ten of spades, which South won with the jack. South won the next trick and led the queen of clubs, declarer finessed the king of clubs and West led the jack and shifted to the ten of spades, which South won with the jack.

A popular idea has been passed around that bright children are usually weaklings. This is not necessarily inferior to children of average intelligence. Psychological and physiological factors often cause children to fail to support such a belief.

In fact the more intelligent children are often the ones that are less than the inferior ones. Physical and mental health ordinarily go hand-in-hand, for the mind is part of the body.

Now South should have stopped to count—three spade tricks, two hearts, three diamonds and a club. In the first trick of clubs, South just laid down the king and queen of diamonds. When that did not break, he led the queen of hearts and then the five of spades. When the spades did not break, they took the heart finesse. West won with the king of clubs and led the queen of diamonds and returned a heart, thus defeating the contract.

When declarer had a jack of spades he should have laid down the ace and queen of hearts to establish his ninth trick. —V.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Widower of 65 Should Marry if He Wishes

Children Err by Opposing Their Father's Wish to Marry Into His Own Age Class; Life Will Be Pleasant for Him

Dear Miss Dix: Several years ago our dear son, a widower and his father, the best old dad on earth, wants to marry again. He is 65 and the same age as his intended. She is a good woman and has some property of her own, as has he. He is a good man and works hard every day, but don't you think it is awful that a man of that age should marry?

There are four of us children and we are able and willing to take care of him when he is too old to work. Please advise.

ANXIOUS DAUGHTERS.

ANSWER: I think you are altogether wrong and very selfish to insist that your father should not marry. Women who seem suitable and who will give him the company he needs are available.

Sixty-five is not too old to marry for a healthy, able-bodied man, and there is no reason why he shouldn't marry. Even if he is not able to provide his mate with a home of her own, there is no reason why he shouldn't marry. Several years ago my husband married a widow who was 60 years old. She had a good home and a good thing when old people marry, if they marry suitably. And there is a great thing in the right attitude toward the in-law problem and leaves the children free to lead their own lives.

Dear Miss Dix: Several years ago our dear son, a widower and his father, the best old dad on earth, wants to marry again. He is 65 and the same age as his intended. She is a good woman and has some property of her own, as has he. He is a good man and works hard every day, but don't you think it is awful that a man of that age should marry?

There are four of us children and we are able and willing to take care of him when he is too old to work. Please advise.

ANXIOUS DAUGHTERS.

ANSWER: I think you are altogether wrong and very selfish to insist that your father should not marry. Women who seem suitable and who will give him the company he needs are available.

Sixty-five is not too old to marry for a healthy, able-bodied man, and there is no reason why he shouldn't marry. Even if he is not able to provide his mate with a home of her own, there is no reason why he shouldn't marry. Several years ago my husband married a widow who was 60 years old. She had a good home and a good thing when old people marry, if they marry suitably. And there is a great thing in the right attitude toward the in-law problem and leaves the children free to lead their own lives.

Banff School of Fine Arts To Be Held July 25 to Aug. 25

The Banff School of Fine Arts, held under the joint direction of the Institute of Technology and Art, Calgary, and the Department of Extension, University of Alberta, will be held in Banff from July 25 to August 25.

The school offers classes in theatre, art, music and handicrafts, and an English-French school.

The course of study is broad and includes a franchise by Edward Howard Griggs, as follows: "The artist's spirit is universal; his spirit is not limited to the few, but is universal for all. Everyone may have it, but it need not be a loving and appreciative art of the fine arts, but a creative art of the mind and body, of melody and rhythm, of life, for student and artist alike. Art is not the adornment of a person's nature, but the expression of his soul, not for the sake of gratifying the senses or exhibiting technical skill, but for art's sake, for life's sake."

Donald Cameron, director of the school, said: "I look forward to the bookings, as they are one of the chief factors of total war that while it involves the complete mobilization of a nation's resources, it also creates destruction. It at the same time develops and accelerates the country's creative resources in many fields."

SCIENCE

"Canada, in her sixth year of war, has made a contribution in the field of science which is unequalled by any other country. Behind that record of achievement stand the schools and educational institutions which have made that proud record possible."

The exigencies of war have called into play the services of thousands of men in many institutions in the creative field, and the Banff School of Fine Arts has been no exception. Many of the school's former staff and students are serving with distinction in every theater of war.

The Banff School of Fine Arts, in its ninth season, are conscious that the Banff school is filling a growing gap in the educational activities and creative arts in Canada. An increasing enrollment each year emphasizes the demand for the kind of quality of education offered.

The Banff School of Fine Arts is one of distinction, assembled from all over America. The students likewise come from all over the continent.

Creative Activity

"For those people, young and old, who like to combine creative activity with artistic training, the Banff School of Fine Arts in its ninth year is an excellent place to begin a career in recreation in a summer in Banff in the Canadian Rockies can be an unforgettable experience."

A large number of scholarships are available to students of the Banff School of Fine Arts. Most of these are to help defray the tuition fees in the various divisions of the school. A few include tuition fees and room and board.

Scholarships available in Alberta include four in theatre, three in painting, two in weaving and seven in art of fine arts.

In Saskatchewan four scholarships to the value of $100 each are offered to students of the Saskatchewan Drama League. Two scholarships are open to Saskatchewan students of art.

In Manitoba two scholarships in art are available and the amount of these are to help defray the tuition fees in the various divisions of the school. In a few include tuition fees and room and board.

Scholarships available in Alberta include four in theatre, three in painting, two in weaving and seven in art of fine arts.

SCHOLARSHIPS

The two scholarships and two theatre scholarships are open to students from British Columbia.

Three theatre scholarships are open to students from the Rocky Mountain region of the United States.

In addition to the foregoing scholarships a further number are provided privately by individuals or groups and are open to all students. Further information on scholarships may be had on request.

Federal Govt. Coal Subsidy Said Essential

(Continuation of Dominion government subsidy on a fair and sufficient basis long enough to justify developing output and market, was urged by the Northern Alberta Coal Operators Association to the Royal Commission Tuesday on coal.

It was suggested that if control is to be exercised by government authority, such control should be vested in persons having a profound knowledge of the problems of the industry.

The association also recommended that the government buy its products, including equipment for more efficient coal mining.

FAIRS SHUTDOWN

J. H. Starky, one of the Edmonton operators, told the commission that if the government wartime subsidy was discontinued, mines in the area would be forced to cease operations.

The brief for the Northern Alberta Operators was presented by G. C. McLean, secretary of the association.

The commission concluded its hearings Tuesday morning and left for Regina where sittings are scheduled for Thursday.

In his statement, Mr. Starky's brief that mining associations in the Edmonton area, because of their seasonal character, presented no problem. These included increased production costs, inability to plan economically, lack of control over handling and distribution of the product, and the difficulty in attracting and retaining qualified personnel to part-time operations.

It was suggested that study be given to the overrunning of the season by the miners so that they can operate on a more constant basis.

It has been suggested that one solution may be the establishment of a by-products plant, which might assist the bulk of the summer miners in getting their wages and mines free to supply the existing market in the winter.

MEET CRITICAL NEEDS

As the result of the recent cold snap in the Edmonton area, it was decided that the cold outside Alberta, the commission was informed, and should circumstances permit, the opening of more Edmonton and district mines, which is a decision possible to make, since coal cannot be supplied locally, will have to be supplied from other fields, will greatly increase cost to the consumer.

It was pointed out that with present development of natural market in Edmonton mines would include Alberta, northern Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

2,280 Jap Planes Baged in Raids

GUAM, April 18.—(AP)—Desertion of at least 2,280 Japanese planes and ships in the Ryukyu and the Japanese mainland started March 15 in advance of the American invasion of Okinawa, April 1, it was reported in a communiqué today.

U.S. infantrymen, marines, long-distance fliers of all types, left off the west central coast of Okinawa. They were met en route by American bombers who downed more than 100 square-mile islands, valuable for its captured airfield, 325 miles from Japan.

About 600 planes of the 2,280 shot down or destroyed by U.S. forces were credited to fliers from Vice Adm. John S. McCain's carrier task force, which prepared the way for the Okinawa invasion.

The Japanese had been making air battles since D-Day, protecting American troops and ships from heavy air strikes, including kamikaze attacks, and were on self-destruction in crash dives.

These included increased production costs, inability to plan economically, lack of control over handling and distribution of the product, and the difficulty in attracting and retaining qualified personnel to part-time operations.

It was suggested that study be given to the overrunning of the season by the miners so that they can operate on a more constant basis.

It has been suggested that one solution may be the establishment of a by-products plant, which might assist the bulk of the summer miners in getting their wages and mines free to supply the existing market in the winter.

In his statement, Mr. Starky's brief that mining associations in the Edmonton area, because of their seasonal character, presented no problem. These included increased production costs, inability to plan economically, lack of control over handling and distribution of the product, and the difficulty in attracting and retaining qualified personnel to part-time operations.

Variety of Guns Being Registered

About 200 individual registrations of firearms have been made at city police headquarters, according to U. S. Reynolds, assistant town constable. The registration affected approximately 200 weapons, including revolvers, automatics and pistols.

Among the registrations are two, there being an average of only one individual at once. Many of these souvenirs from the First World War.

Some persons with antequated guns, because of the uselessness of the weapons, have taken them to police headquarters to have broken up and used for some other purpose, said Mr. Reynolds.

Mr. Reynolds himself has reduced his collection to a mere two guns, having given away many nations of decades ago by handing a goodly portion of his collection to the Royal Canadian Legion.

In spite of the several hundreds he disposed of in this way, he has reduced his collection "to a mere two," he stated.

Alberta gun production for March was 2,106,472 pounds, a decrease of 19,424 pounds from February, according to provincial agricultural department statistics. Northern Alberta produced 807,860 pounds during the month; central Alberta, 767,700 pounds.

January-March production in the province amounted to 5,830,700 pounds, 74 per cent below figures for the first three months of last year.

Factory cheese production in March was 312,436 pounds, 18.1 per cent over the 613,675 pounds manufactured in February.
